Payson city won't wait for water

By KEITH TROUT

Payson's secondary water system for Payson the ballot in the form of a bond issue November, because the town's mayor for Central Utah Project water will not. Mayor Gary Tassain said his city will not wait for water to supply irrigation water. He said the Central Utah Project water is not available from the Central Utah Project water. Similar proposal
A proposal was voted on a year ago and but Tassain said the current plan would be more expensive than the first. Last year's plan cost $16 to $18 per month, while the new plan would cost $11 per month, and could be supplemented by funds from the Resource Board.

also plans to generate hydro-electric power. The agreement for the necessary water can be obtained from the Strawberry Water Users Association. The problem is a matter of money, and the city is currently at a stalemate, according to Tassain.

Secondary system
The secondary water system would provide only water, and would be completely separate from the primary system. The water would be pumped from several reservoirs that the city owns.

U.S. involvement in El Salvador could become repeat of Vietnam?

h President Reagan said in a conference that the two sides were not to be compared, an Air Force official who served in Vietnam said he was not sure if the United States people have asked that and no one seems to be very sure.

Thomas Kallunki served of duty in Vietnam, on Green Berets, and is the former of the military science department at BYU. Kallunki said the difference between what's going on in El Salvador and what happened in Vietnam is very real. He calls it a "war of attrition" and said the United States has to be careful not to overdraw the military.

Asia carrying the dead and wounded, said he shares the concern and is well aware of America's strong desire to be uninvolved in the conflict. But he said he is much more concerned with "balancing the insidious threat of communism" and with obligations to friends, allies, neighbors and treaties.

Waldron said that if the United States was ever drawn into the conflict, it would have to go into the war to win. The number one lesson learned in Vietnam is "a war that's worth entering is a war worth winning," he said.

Kallunki said there are solutions other than direct troop involvement. "We must make it clear to the government of El Salvador that they are the ones who have to solve the problem." More training at the lower leadership level would also be beneficial, Kallunki added.

According to Associated Press reports, several of the few dozen U.S. military advisers in El Salvador are appealing for more support. Waldron said he agrees that more U.S. support is needed.

"At this point in time I do not think we need to give them support in the form of troops who are actually pulling triggers," he said. Instead, there needs to be an increase in the number of military advisers and additional armaments.

Most people resent having strangers telling them what to do in their own country, said Kallunki, who saw that happening in Vietnam. Although economic support is also necessary, Waldron said, any increase in aid dollars to the Salvadorans would have to be accounted for very carefully so that it would not be "filling the pockets of some corrupt government official."

Gilmore victim's widow, uncle testify

By VINCE WATSON
Staff Writer

PROVO — The widow of one of Gary Gilmore's victims and Gilmore's uncle testified Tuesday before an eight-member jury in the $1 million lawsuit before Fourth District Court Judge David Sam.

The suit was filed by both of the widows of Gilmore's victims who are seeking a share of the royalties earned from Gilmore's life story.

Vernon Damico, uncle of executed murderer Gary Gilmore, resumed his testimony for the prosecution, and was later cross-examined by the defense.

He testified that he was responsible for the dispersment of $52,500 which was paid to him by Lawrence Schiller, a defendant in the case and motion picture producer/director.

"The money was payment for the story of Gary, myself, my family and others," Damico said. "Schiller wanted the entire story, not just Gary's."

Damico said Gilmore directed that $3,000 be paid to babysitters of close friends of his. "My impression was that it was a gift," Damico was directed to give $5,000 to a nameless man on the street who knew the assassin, "AutoSolar," which is a machine used in a shoe shop. Gilmore also directed that $5,000 be given to Sterling Baker, who had stayed with the Damicos at one time.

"Gary did say he wanted the Bushnells and Jensens taken care of," — Vernon Damico, uncle of Gary Gilmore.

A total of $10,000 was given to Damico and his wife to cover their agency fees, according to Gilmore's instructions.

Ray P. Ivie, the Provo attorney representing the widows, asked Damico if Gilmore ever directed money to be given to the families of the slain men. Damico said no, but "Gary did say he wanted the Bushnells and Jensens taken care of."

"Before Schiller signed the contract giving me the money, he insisted that something be put in to care for the Bushnells and Jensens," Damico said.

William Stegall, attorney for one of the widows, asked Damico why he was given $52,500 when Gilmore was only given $1,000.

"Prison doesn't allow an inmate to have more than $1,000 in an account," Damico replied.

The bulk of the $52,500 was dispersed before Gilmore was executed on Jan. 17, 1977 at the Utah State Prison for the deaths of Max Jensen and Benny Bushnell.

Damico said he had been offered $75,000 for the rights to Gilmore's story by singer Paul Anka, and 5 percent of the profits from a book and movie by producer David Susskind.

The prosecution then called Colleen Jensen, widow of Max Jensen, to the stand.

Jensen, who married Scott Ostergaard in January 1981, said since the death of Max, she has been receiving workmen's compensation.

"Since the death of Max, I have received $564.80 every 28 days . . . which will continue for the rest of the 6 1/2-year time period."

Jensen said she sold the rights to her life story to Schiller for $10,000. She said she made the transaction because of dire economic straits, and because she did not want only one side of the murder to be told or for it to be glorified.

She has not received any of the $620,000 which was awarded her in a 1978 wrongful-death suit.

Schiller was then called to the stand. He said he became aware of the Gilmore situation during the first week of November 1976 while reading a newspaper in California. "The thing I found interesting was the fact that Gilmore was not appealing his death sentence," Schiller said.

Police helped by students, man arrested

By LAURA CHILDERS
Staff Writer

A Utah man has been arrested and charged with allegedly attempting to molest an 18-year-old BYU student in the Harris Fine Arts Center Monday night, said University Police Capt. Wes Sherwood. David Allan Neil, a 35-year-old salesman from Smithfield, was restrained by four students working in the building after the alleged victim broke away from him and found help, Sherwood said.

Neil is being held on $25,000 bail in the Utah County Jail.

The University Police were contacted at 8:44 p.m. and arrived in the HFAC to find Neil cornered by the students, Sherwood said. University Police officer Aaron Rhoades arrested the suspect and charged him with forcible sexual abuse.

Sherwood said Monday night's incident was similar to three other molestations that occurred on campus in July, but he did not connect Neil with them.

He said the incidents occurred in the same general vicinity. "We are contemplating further charges (against Neil)."

The suspect allegedly led the student into a women's restroom off of the Pardee Theater where the incident occurred, Sherwood said.

No officers were assigned to stake-out the HFAC on Monday night, he said. If it weren't for the students who held him, Neil would have gotten away. "They need to be highly complimented," Mary Gunther, a freshman from American Fork majoring in elementary education, was in the HFAC studying when the incident occurred. She watched as Neil was restrained by the students. "He acted like he didn't do it. He said to the students who were holding him 'I gotta go, bye.'"

Steve Syphus, a sophomore from Pocatello, Idaho, majoring in political science, works as a custodian in the HFAC and was one of the students who restrained Neil.

Syphus said Neil, who was wearing a yellow shirt and tie, did not struggle to escape, but he tried to talk his way out of it. He asked what was going on and said he was late for an appointment.

The incident occurred on the first floor of the building, he said, and the alleged victim fled to the third floor after she escaped, where she received help.

Syphus said he was leading the girl down to his office when she spotted Neil attempting to board an elevator. "It was more than apparent by the way she acted that that was him."

U.S. Navy guards area, box not recovered yet

BY UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Washington denied Japanese news media reports Tuesday that U.S. Navy search vessels were preparing to retrieve the flight recorder of the South Korean airliner shot down by Soviet fighters.

The reports followed the dispatch of a 10-member international group, including an official of the International Civil Aviation Organization, to join U.S. ships searching for the box of Japan for the flight recorder, or black box, of Korean Air Lines Flight 007.

Area guarded

"The area where the black box is located is being guarded by U.S. ships and the Americans are considering for the arrival of officials from Japan and the International Civil Aviation Organization," Kyodo News Service quoted a foreign ministry official as saying.

A Japanese Foreign Ministry spokesman refused to confirm or deny the report.

NHK, Japan's public broadcasting network, quoted unidentified government sources as saying the flight recorder was found amid the Korean plane's wreckage in international waters about 14 miles west of Moneron, a tiny island off the southwest coast of Soviet-held Sakhalin Island.

Reports of the imminent retrieval of the flight recorder coincided with Soviet charges that U.S. ships were impeding the progress of Russian searches.

"The U.S., Japanese, South Korean and Soviet ships are searching in the region, which is considered to be the continental shelf of the Soviet Union," said an article in the military magazine, Krasnaya Zvezda, or Red Star. "It is the U.S. ships that maneuver dangerously close to the Soviet ships."

Some 17 Soviet ships were sighted in waters north of Moneron, some 15 miles apart from the American search area.

Retrieval of the flight recorder could help explain why the KAL jetliner veered hundreds of miles off course into Soviet airspace Sept. 1. A Soviet jet downed the plane with two missiles and all 269 people aboard are presumed dead.

The U.S. Navy categorically denied the Japanese press reports.

Still lost

"The U.S. Navy has not found the black box. The search is continuing unchanged," said Lt. Gary Shroust at Yokosuka Navy Base near Tokyo. In Washington, President Reagan said he had "no knowledge" that the recorder might have been found.

State Department spokesman Alan Romberg said: "There have been black box soundings from time to time, but as I understand it, there've been none since the weekend and we have absolutely no information that Japanese or Japanese media reports on the recovery. There is no indication that anyone has located the recorder and is about to haul it up."

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo said the invitation to the survey team was issued last week and denied it indicated the recorder might have been located.

Y student loan delinquency one of the lowest nationally

By KARI BAUER
Staff Writer

BYU has one of the lowest delinquency rates on student loans in the United States, according to Norman B. Finlison, guaranteed student loan program coordinator.

For BYU long-term and short-term loans, the default rate is only 1/2 of 1 percent using the federal definition of default, said Ford L. Stevenson, Director of Financial Aids.

"Most students are very good paying back their loans, as evidenced by the low default rate," he said.

Student may receive financial aid either through the federal Guaranteed Student Loan program (GSL), or through a BYU long- or short-term loan, Stevenson said.

Although the university processes around 12,000 GSL's a year, it has relatively little to do with them, Finlison said. Until recently, BYU's only involvement has been to confirm a student was enrolled in school.

But, as the problem of student loan defaulters escalates in the nation, the federal government has shifted more responsibility to the states and schools.

The Wall Street Journal reported on July 26, 1983, that since the federal GSL program began in 1965, defaults by former students have swelled the nearly $2 billion of the $17.3 billion of loans that have matured since the program went into effect.

Partially as a result of this, the federal government has encouraged the states to take over some of the responsibility. In Utah, Finlison said, all GSL's are now handled through Loan Service Inc. of Utah.

BYU's current policy for the GSL is to verify to the lending institution the student is enrolled. The student takes the verification slip to the bank and it sends the student's check to BYU for distribution. BYU watches the academic standards.

"Now, when there is a default in Utah, the ramifications are quite severe," Finlison said. "They have a little more clout and it's easier to track defaulters. The federal government was more removed from the students and it's easier for the states to monitor their own."

Stevenson said that BYU generally processed 4,000 short- and long-term loans each semester. For a short-term loan, payments in full are due within the semester. Students with long-term loans have until they graduate or terminate enrollment to pay.

BYU has its own collection staff within the Financial Aids Office, Stevenson said. If a student misses a payment, a reminder is first sent through the mail. If the payment is not made, then contact is made by telephone. If this fails, then the file is handed over to an external collection agency.

"But the number handed over to an external agency is very small," Stevenson said. "That is evidenced by our default rate, which really is very small."

Nine guerrillas killed in refugee camp battle

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Rival Palestinian guerrillas battled with machine guns and mortars in a refugee camp north of Beirut Tuesday and the Lebanese army repelled sporadic attacks by rebels violating a two-day cease-fire.

Police said nine guerrillas were killed and 20 others were wounded in the Badawi refugee camp near Tripoli, 42 miles north of Beirut. Beirut radio said as many as 20 guerrillas were killed and 30 others were wounded in the battle.

As Lebanon recovered from 22 days of all-out civil war, politicians wrangled over how to implement terms of Monday's cease-fire agreement that called for talks among warring factions to forge a more permanent peace.

With tension still running high, Walid Jumblatt, leader of the Syrian-backed Druze Moslem rebels, threatened President Amin Gemayel would be assassinated like his brother Bashir who died a year ago in a terrorist bombing.

The government said the cease-fire would allow Beirut International Airport, where U.S. Marines are stationed, to be reopened Thursday after being closed for more than a month because of factional fighting.

Exchanges of machine gun and mortar fire raged between supporters of the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Syrian-backed Lebanese army. The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine General Command led by Ahmed Jibril.

"The Arafat faction seems to have the upper hand now in the Badawi camp," a police official said of the daylong refugee camp battle 42 miles north of Beirut.

Reports from the scene said Arafat opponents also fortified their positions and set up rocket launchers at another Palestinian camp in Tripoli. Supporters of Arafat said another group of about 1,000 guerrillas loyal to the PLO chief were under pressure from Syrian army units that drove them out of the eastern Bekaa Valley into the northeastern Herzel region of Lebanon.

Syria has been trying to impose its control over the PLO since Israeli troops drove Arafat and his supporters from Beirut last year. PLO rebels, led by Col. Abu Moussa, consider Arafat's policies too moderate.

"I'm keeping a future in store for Amin Gemayel like that of his brother Bashir," Jumblatt said. The truce between the Lebanese army and the rebels held for a second day even though Shiite Moslem militiamen peppered army units with sniper fire in Beirut and Jumblatt's Druze rebels fired an occasional rocket propelled grenade at army patrols in the mountains, an army spokesman said.

Reagan asks Congress to increase IMF funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan warned Tuesday that refusal by Congress to approve $8.4 billion in increased U.S. financing for the International Monetary Fund could lead to a global "economic nightmare" lasting generations.

"I have an unbreakable commitment to increased funding for the IMF," the president told the formal opening of the joint annual meeting of the World Bank and IMF. "But Congress so far has failed to act to pass the enabling legislation."

Reagan urged the Congress to be "mindful of its responsibility" and to avoid "partisan wrangling and political posturing."

A number of conservative Republicans strongly oppose the IMF increase, calling it a taxpayer bailout for commercial banks, and the administration needs Democratic support for passage of the stalled bill, particularly in the House.

But House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said Tuesday the president's speech was not enough to satisfy a group of Democrats who have refused to back final passage of the IMF bill unless they get a letter of apology from the president.

"The Democrats are outraged over a letter sent to their districts by the Republican congressional campaign committee, accusing them of communist leanings for voting in the House against an amendment to forbid the IMF from lending to 'communist dictatorships.' The administration and House Republican leaders also opposed that amendment."

"He's not going to pass this off with some terse remark," said O'Neill after the president's speech.

Marine issue subject of letter from Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan promised in writing Tuesday to work with Congress on any plan to expand the role of U.S. Marines in Lebanon or to keep them there more than 18 months, but Senate Democrats doubted his sincerity.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill privately lectured fellow House Democrats about the need to keep Marines in Lebanon and to support Syria's efforts to divide Lebanon.

"A victory for Syria would be a victory for Russia," he told reporters later. "I appreciate that the person on the street probably doesn't understand that, but God, a member of Congress ought to understand."

Reagan sent a letter to Senate and House leaders promising to abide by a compromise worked out to skirt a major confrontation over the authority of Congress and the president under the 1973 War Powers Resolution.

The compromise is a resolution that states the deaths of four Marines in recent fighting in Lebanon subjected the Marine force there to congressional authorization and allows the Marines to remain for 18 months.

With crucial votes on the resolution coming up in the House and Senate, Reagan sought to reassure lawmakers of his good intentions.

"I can assure you that if our forces are needed in Lebanon beyond the 18-month period, it would be my intention to work together with Congress with a view toward taking action on mutually acceptable terms," he wrote.

It would be my intention to seek congressional authorization—as contemplated by the (war powers) act—if circumstances require any substantial expansion in U.S. armed forces, he said.

What of Watt?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican Senate leaders meeting with President Reagan today were armed with a poll of their members on whether embattled Interior Secretary James Watt ought to resign for an impromptu remark last week that is still drawing scathing criticism.

Party leaders began polling Senate Republicans Tuesday, apparently trying to determine just how badly Watt's off-the-cuff gibe at affirmative action may hurt GOP chances of holding on to the Senate next year, when 19 of the 33 seats at stake are Republican.

Reagan meets with Senate and House GOP leaders this morning and then with a delegation of House Republicans on the War Powers Resolution.

Watt is a likely subject of both meetings, considering the furor raised by his comment that a commission he appointed contained "a black... a woman, two Jews and a cripple."

The president, trying to remain above the controversy, has said it is up to Watt to decide whether to remain or resign. Presidential counselor Edwin Meese told reporters Tuesday he believes the president "considers the case closed," and told United Press International, "The matter is behind us."

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill Tuesday said he considered Watt a kind of court jester.

"The town always needs a joke, and he's the biggest joke we've had in years," the Massachusetts Democrat said.

But he suggested Reagan will not fire Watt, because the president "believes what Jim Watt believes."

Carnival prize causes suit

A woman has filed a $300,000 lawsuit against a carnival alleging that a decorative pop bottle won by her son injured him.

According to the complaint, the elongated bottle broke in her son's hand, causing medical and cleaning expenses as well as distress to the entire family.

The suit was filed by Penny St. Peter, names The City of Fun and Pleasant Grove Strawberry Days Committee and the City of Pleasant Grove as defendants.

Investigation
 According to Gladie Shelley of the Utah County Health Department, the investigation of the carnival game booth then operating in Pleasant Grove was conducted. Four bottles were analyzed by a laboratory and three were found to contain urine.

Shelley, who is the owner of The City of Fun and Pleasant Grove City Recorder Mark Johnson expressed regret over the incident in Pleasant Grove, but said, "I doubt the suit will carry much weight. How do they know that particular bottle had urine?" Wayne Watson, attorney for St. Peter, indicated the seized bottles were the primary evidence.

By SHERIDAN R. HANSEN
 Senior Reporter

Stories become reality, and food and anorexia and bulimic victims need to be treated from others.

At a recent meeting, an anorexic and bulimic support group met every Thursday to share its pain and the disorder and give advice to other members.

Mae Rasmussen, group facilitator, and high, co-facilitator of the group and anorexic, said they hope to be able to give and bulimics warnings about their disordered eating to help support from others.

Rasmussen said, "There is almost always an authoritarian father or parent involved, as seldom expressed."

Later, Ann took another step towards recovery and decided to go see a doctor, a psychiatrist was bad news.

"I didn't know for five years what was wrong," Ruth said. "We can do more for ourselves than with a counselor. You don't realize what you are doing, you want help so bad."

For more information about the support group meetings, Rasmussen can be contacted in the Kimball Tower Counseling Center.

Police handle shoplifting cases

SHANNON HALL
 Staff Writer

Two-day period last week, the police were notified of eight shoplifting cases.

According to the Orem police records, five of the seven were some type of cosmetics.

According to the Orem Police records, the most common items stolen are cosmetics.

At the store, one woman had a cosmetic in her hand. Barker asked several store employees if the item, went to the store and put the items in the store.

When the woman exited the store, she was stopped by store security. When asked about the items in her hand, Barker said she was making a purchase for some items. She said she was returning the items and picked up some items in exchange.

When asked she knew this was a bad idea, she said she was trying to get the items. She said she was trying to get the items. She said she was trying to get the items.

Shelley, who opened the seals and had the samples tested, said there was no noticeable smell and the solution was probably diluted. "No infectious organism was found in the samples, and although urine was present, technically they were sterile."

When asked why the Strawberry Days Committee and the City of Pleasant Grove were included in the suit, Johnson said, "Maybe they just want to go for the deep pocket." Attorney for Pleasant Grove Ray Harding said he would try to have the city dismissed from the suit.

Watson expressed concern that many bottles may still be in the area somewhere, sitting on a windowsill. "Lots of these things were given as prizes and there are probably plenty of people unaware of what's in them." Watson said they should be taken to the County Health Department for analysis.

Jetliner parts rain from sky

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI)
 — White-hot engine parts from a Republic Airlines jetliner crashed onto the roofs of at least 11 homes in this affluent seaside community Tuesday, setting a series of fires, Police said.

The two-engine DC-9 returned safely to John Wayne Airport on one engine, and no one on the ground was struck by the debris, authorities said.

"It takes too much control to get over," Ann said. "Your feelings are taken to the extreme."

Family love
 After Ann's family found out, she said it was a relief to know that they still loved her and then she felt 10 times more love.

"Maybe I hold onto anorexia because of that love."

All group members expressed an anger towards anyone who tries to dominate their lives. They said in a way, losing weight is a type of rebellion for them.

Susan said that when her parents would express their love to her, she never really felt it. Even though they really meant it, she said she had turned off the valve to her emotions and wouldn't feel anything.

"Then most of the time, you are begging 'please notice me.'"

Vandalism results in broken pillar in library

Vandals destroyed a smoked glass directional pillar in the Harold B. Lee Library on Sept. 22. It was the second pillar to be vandalized in the last six months, said Randy Olsen, assistant university librarian.

The incident took place near the reference desk on the first floor of the library sometime between 10 p.m. Sept. 21 and 7 a.m. Sept. 22, Olsen said.

"We would suspect it was probably done between 10 p.m. Sept. 21 and 7 a.m. Sept. 22, Olsen said.

Officials are concerned students may be witnessing these crimes and not reporting them, Olsen said. The pillars cost $1,000 each.

Students are asked to report vandalism to University Police.

G.E. procedures to be explained in seminar series

By SUSAN HARRIS
 Staff Writer

The College of Education will hold seminars on a variety of topics for all students starting Thursday.

The seminars will be held approximately every other week, twice a day, on Thursdays, with each seminar dealing with a different topic, said Roberta Chock of the Education Advisement Center.

Students of all majors are invited. Question and answer periods will follow each seminar, Chock said.

Thursday the seminars will include, "General Education at BYU" and "Pre-Registration: What Happens to Your Requested Classes?"

Lecturing on these topics will be William Evenson, dean of General Education, and Douglas Bell, assistant BYU registrar, Chock said.

The seminars are designed to be a continuation of student orientation.

Tailback ranks sixth in receiving, too

Stinnett a double offensive threat

By SCOTT TAYLOR
Sports Editor

He glanced to see if he could cut inside, and then he noticed that two blocks delivered by fullback Casey Tiamalu and guard Louis Wong had opened up the outside. Turning on the burners, BYU running back Eddie Stinnett headed for the right sideline, turned the corner and outran the Air Force defenders 36 yards to the end zone in Saturday's Cougar-Falcon football game.

BYU fans who watched the game were witnesses to a somewhat uncommon BYU offensive scoring play —a running play, a sweep. It wasn't a TD pass from a heralded quarterback, nor was it a short two- or three-yard dive play that was set up by a long pass reception.

It was a bona fide running play, featuring a running back with 4.6 speed in the 40, a fullback that delivered a leveling block and an offensive lineman who turned his defensive counterpart to the inside, allowing the carrier to cut the corner and scamper down the sideline.

If Stinnett had his way, he run that same play — the "28" sweep to the right where he follows the blocking of the fullback and a pulling guard — as much as possible.

"We run it a lot more than last year," said the 6-foot, 211-pound senior from Springfield, Ohio. "It's much more effective this year. The defense is usually expecting us to pass, and that opens up the running game."

The tailback has already rushed 15 times so far this season for a total of 161 yards, an average of 10.7 yards per carry.

"The rushing average surprises me — it's a great honor," Stinnett said modestly. "All the credit goes to the offensive linemen for helping me get that. If it weren't for the linemen, I wouldn't have that kind of average."

"If the linemen keep blocking like they have, I'll be able to keep a 9- to 10-yard average," he added.

While his rushing average commands a lot of respect, Stinnett's pass receiving is getting even more attention.

After three games, Stinnett is the leading receiver not only on the Cougar team, but in the Western Athletic Conference as well, having caught 21 tosses for 154 yards and an average of seven catches per game. That's good enough to be the sixth leading receiver in the nation as well.

But being part of a pass-oriented team didn't always sit well with Stinnett, who was previously deep-rooted in a strong running attack as an all-state prepster in Ohio and an honorable mention junior college All-America running back at Snow College.

But he admitted that "it feels all right now," and has appreciated the chance to develop into a potential receiver, floating out of the backfield and into the flats.

"I like the option route," said the physical education major, singling out the pass play that he looks forward to each game. "The option is up to me. It's my choice to do what I want to do."

"It depends on the defense," he continued. "The quarterback looks at me because it's my route and I do what I want to do."

But then it's the defenses that are expecting the pass that allows Stinnett to pick up his yardage, especially on the sweeps around the end.

"The sweeps really help my average," he said. "If the defense thinks we're going to pass and drops back thinking pass, then that helps me get to the outside."

Stinnett, who has surprised many in his starting role this year, so he didn't think much of being a substitute last year. "At first, I got mad because I wasn't playing. But I realized that I didn't know the offense and I didn't know what to look for in the different schools."

This year, Stinnett is teaming up with Tiamalu and Waymon Hamilton to form one of the most explosive backfield trios in the Intermountain West.

"The rotation keeps all three backs healthy," he said. "If one of us were to go down-for-down, we'd get tired, hurt. But if we all three play, we stay healthy and decrease the chance of getting hurt."

The three have combined for seven touchdowns, more than 500 yards rushing and over 400 yards receiving.

If that's any indication of things to come, Stinnett is well on his way of meeting his preseason goals of 870 yards rushing and 500 yards receiving.

Jubilant Aussies kiss America's Cup

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Triumphant Australians kissed the America's Cup Tuesday while New York Yacht Club dignitaries held their heads high and hoped the victors would not "keep it for another 132 years."

The silver trophy, polished and glistening in the sunlight, was presented to Peter Daltzell, commodore of the Royal Perth Yacht Club, who said he was overwhelmed that "the impossible dream has been achieved."

In ceremonies overlooking Rhode Island Sound where Australia II beat the U.S. defender Liberty for the 33rd annual cup, NYCC Commodore Robert Stone said, "We hoped this occasion would never come. Now that it has, we're going to do it in style."

However, vanquished American skipper Dennis Comner and all of his crew stayed away from the ceremonies.

The official end of an era of U.S. yacht racing supremacy came as Stone picked up the bottomless Victorian pitcher and handed it to Daltzell, with Australia II Syndicate head Alan Bond, skipper John Bertrand and keel designer Ben Lexcen holding their arms up in triumph.

"After 132 years, we turn this over," said Stone. Commending the Australians for their outstanding sportsmanship and seamanship, he said, "I don't think there's any other country we'd rather have it go to."

"I hope you take good care of it," Stone said. "I hope you won't keep it for another 132 years."

Liberty Syndicate Manager Edward du Moulin solemnly presented the red, white and blue Liberty camp flag to Bertrand "for a job well done."

It was a heartbreaker of a loss for Comner, the 41-year-old San Diego drapery manufacturer who became the first U.S. skipper to lose the trophy.

Although the successful 1980 defender led around the first four marks of Monday's unprecedented seventh race of the best-of-seven finals, Comner couldn't stop Australia II from making up a 57-second deficit on the fifth leg and finishing ahead.

While Bertrand — the 36-year-old Melbourne sailmaker who became an Australian national hero overnight — gently touched the object of his grueling quest, Australia II Executive Director Warren Jones rushed over and kissed the Cup several times in uncontained exuberance.

"It's an honor to have been the helmsman on behalf of Australia," Bertrand said quietly.

The America's Cup — ensconced in the NYCC's quarters since the schooner America won it from the British in 1851 — was unlooted from the table and brought to Newport in a Brinks truck. It was placed in a bank vault pending the trip Down Under.

In Australia, Prime Minister Robert Hawke declared Tuesday a national day of celebration. President Reagan sent Hawke a message of congratulations on Australia's "magnificent victory."

"If the America's Cup had to leave the United States," Reagan said, "I am delighted that its home will be Australia — at least until the next race."

All-Utah tourney a possibility

LAKE CITY (UPI)—Plans for a Utah Christmas basketball tournament featuring BYU, Utah State and Weber State have the talking stages for years. "I may never get any further as athletic directors can solve money problems," test version, supported by Utah Lake-area businessmen, give the teams play off in the 1980s, with the tournament carried on local television. That plan seems doomed because 12,500-seat Salt Palace ticket revenue that Utah's Special Events Center's giant 22,700-seat Marriott and because the promoters' television revenue stands now, both BYU and Utah could drop their road trip to Weber State and Utah State only once each it would hurt both the Wildcat Aggies, who play in the Utah State Spectrum. Utah Athletic Director Arnie Anderson is similar to the feel of other schools, a stand that for his basketball program. "I'm not sure it would be to me," Ferrin says. "But, I'm not sure it would be to the others. In other words, there are a lot of things that need to be resolved." Anderson, USU's director before accepting the job at BYU last spring, says the issue from the other side it was a good idea when I athletic director," Anderson says. "But the problem at BYU is we have 22,000 fans for our home games, so that might take away from the schools complain they can't have as many games each year. AA rules—28 for USU and 26 for Utah State and they have one road game at Hawaii and the 29th game helps them recover the expense of flying to Honolulu.

BYU's Gary Furniss battles for a rebound while teammate Devin Durrant looks on in a tense instate game against Utah State in the Marriott Center last year. A potential tournament involving the Utah collegiate teams has temporarily stalled.

"We have to play 14 Big Sky conference games each year," says Weber State Athletic Director Gary Crompton. "We play Utah State twice and BYU and Utah once. That puts us up to 18. Then the first game in the Big Sky post season tournament is 19, and we're only left with nine games."

will help them recruit or gain a ranking in the wire service polls. And for the Utes and Cougars the scheduling problems are more difficult than at Weber State because they must play 16 Western Athletic Conference games and they both host early-December tournaments.

"We really don't need any more games in Utah," Ferrin says. "We need games on the East and West coasts for national media exposure." And Anderson says about the only way BYU can keep playing all the games it wants, retain USU and Weber State on its schedule, and compete in an All-Utah classic, would be to drop its pre-season tournament.

"It would almost mean giving up the Cougar Classic to keep everyone else happy," Anderson says. "We want to play everyone, but working out the scheduling is the real problem."

Crompton says the money solution that might make everyone happy would be to host such a tournament every year at BYU's Marriott Center and split the 22,700 ticket sales and television revenues four ways.

But Crompton also wants to leave the in-state schedules the way they are.

"When you put the numbers to it, we can't commit to the tournament if we never have Utah or BYU at our place again. We're not in business to lose money, so we've still got a lot of talking to do."

And Ferrin says, "I'd be surprised if we're close, but I'm not sure we've explored all the possibilities." A plan to rotate the proposed tournament yearly among the four schools is the least likely to succeed, unless the host gets to keep all the revenue. That would make both BYU and Utah happy because they can sell more tickets.

So Crompton's recommendation to use the Marriott Center every year and split the take equally appears to be the most palatable, if the four athletic directors can work out their instate schedules.

Knudsen earns 'player' honor

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI)—Karin Knudsen, who led Brigham Young University to the BYU Preview Invitational championship, has been named the High Country Athletic Conference volleyball player of the week.

Knudsen, a 6-0 right-side hitter from Oxnard, Calif., had a better than 50 percent efficiency rating over BYU's eight matches in the tournament.

BYU Coach Elaine Michaelis said Knudsen, a senior majoring in recreation, had a "superb" tournament. Her consistency, hitting and serving definitely led us to the championship.

On 118 attempts during the tournament, Knudsen had 67 kills, 17 errors, 16 aces.

A BYU runner, Jill Holiday, was also named High Country Athletic Conference cross country runner of the week.

Cougar's Young honored for offensive performance

DENVER (UPI)—Steve Young, the latest in the long line of pass-crazy quarterbacks at BYU, was named the Western Athletic Conference player of the week Tuesday.

Although former Cougar quarterback Jim McMahon already owns most of the NCAA quarterbacking records, Young found a niche for himself in the record book by completing 18 straight passes in BYU's 46-28 win over Air Force Saturday. The old mark was 15, held by four different quarterbacks.

Young completed 39 of 49 passes for 436 yards and three touchdowns. It was his third straight game of passing more than 300 yards and the 14th straight game he has thrown a touchdown pass.

Young leads the nation in passing with an average of 412.3 yards, as well as in total offense with 451.7 yards, completions with 30.7, and points responsible for with 28.

Other nominees for the offensive honor were Air Force wide receiver Mike Kirby, Colorado State running back Steve Bartalo, Hawaii quarterback Raphael Cherry, New Mexico quarterback Buddy Funk and San Diego State quarterback Mark McKay.

The WAC defensive player of the week was Utah defensive end Jeff Reyes for his play in the Utes' 28-25 win over Hawaii.

Reyes, who switched from tackle this season, had seven unassisted tackles, one assist and one tackle for a loss. He also had a pass deflection and five quarterback sacks for 33 total yards lost.

Former guest artist Ditson to give faculty dance recital

By MICHAEL M. SCHOLL
Staff Writer

A faculty dance recital featuring Les Ditson, a new assistant professor of dance, will be presented Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m. in the Nelke Experimental Theater, in the HFAC.

Ditson, who teaches modern dance, kinesiology and biomechanics, originally came to BYU as a guest artist fall semester of 1979. "When I came to BYU, it was just another university to me. A guest artist will reside at many universities during his career and can make a living at it," he said.

After being at BYU a short time, Ditson said he became interested in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. "I used to pick up pamphlets from the table in the Wilkinson Center and read them in the park on Sunday." He was baptized in December 1979.

Ditson said he believes in becoming proficient at many things. Besides dancing, he has supported himself as a commercial layout artist, fashion designer, tailor, upholsterer and costumer. He is also a skilled cabinet-maker, his father's trade prior to becoming a professional sculptor.

He has also done extensive work as a stage manager, is writing a book on dance composition and is pursuing a doctorate in theater at the University of Utah.

Explaining his reason for teaching at BYU, Ditson said, "There is a spirit and an attitude here that carries these people almost effortlessly. In New York we literally broke our bodies to get the kind of ensemble that is present at BYU."

Although Ditson received his degrees in dance, he studied art for four years at Wheaton College, the Art Institute of Chicago and San Jose State University before attending UCLA.

Ditson's recital will begin with a piece called "How to Make a Dance," which encourages the audience to participate by suggesting elements to compose a meaningful dance.

"Pursuit" is a new, unperformed dance created by Ditson and performed by Marilyn Berrett. Another dance, "Harmonies," is a duet with Berrett.

A flute solo by Ditson's wife, Mary, will be featured in the dance "Untitled."

Universities join, present 'Antigone'

By LESLIE ROLLINS
Staff Writer

The classic Greek tragedy "Antigone" will be performed in the Main Gallery of the Harris Fine Arts Center Thursday afternoon at 4:10.

Sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts, the Utah Arts Council and the Utah Rural Arts Consortium, the production of "Antigone" will be performed in classic Greek costumes, a non-traditional setting and incorporate original music.

Robert Nelson, coordinator of theater history, dramatic theory and criticism in BYU's Department of Theater and Cinematic Arts, said "Antigone" is one of the most powerful of the Sophoclean tragedies.

"Mormon audiences are impressed by its presentation of private values in conflict with public values," he said.

The play tells the tragic story of a woman's attempt to honor her brother with a proper burial despite the law forbidding the deed pronounced by the king, her father-in-law.

Nelson said this performance of "Antigone" is a good chance to see a quality production of a great play in a non-traditional setting.

Greek tragedy is difficult to present because of language and cultural differences, he said. "We are at the mercy of the translator." Despite these difficulties, he expects an "exciting, insightful and invigorating" interpretation of the play under the direction of University of Utah's Ken Williams.

Nelson pointed out this was a good opportunity for the students and faculty of BYU to "enter into a dialogue with their colleagues on the other side of the mountain. This production could help build bridges between two universities that should be closer than they are," he said.

Bringing the play to BYU was an exercise in cooperation between the College of Humanities and the English and Theater Departments.

Spyro Gyra plans Y concert

BY SANDY WISEMAN
Entertainment Editor

The jazz band Spyro Gyra has accepted an offer to perform at BYU Oct. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the ELWC ballroom, according to Rich Clark, ASBYU culture vice president.

The group, which has recorded seven albums, is being co-sponsored by ASBYU and Salt Lake City promoter Scott Arnold on what Clark calls an "experimental basis."

The sponsorship of the concert differs from most ASBYU events in that the promoter is bringing the group at his expense to see if there is a market for jazz in this area, Clark said.

"No one knows what the interest level in jazz is around here. Hopefully, this concert will open to the door to bring other jazz groups to BYU if the concert is successful," he said.

Clark mentioned the possibility of scheduling such artists as Bob James, Earl Klugh and Grover Washington.

The lack of knowledge of the amount of interest in jazz stems from the public misunderstanding of what constitutes jazz. "Some people think jazz is Glen Miller and Duke Ellington. New jazz is called fusion jazz. It is very exciting and modern," Clark said.

The seven-member band Spyro Gyra plays exciting music that maintains artistic integrity, meaning "they're not in music just to make money," Clark said.

The band has been listed in the number one and two slots of various music polls including those in Billboard, Record World and Cashbox magazines, according to Scott Arnold, promoter.

Spyro Gyra, which originated in Buffalo, N.Y., was also nominated for a Grammy award for best jazz fusion performance in 1980, Arnold said.

Cougar Band to play at Disneyland

MICHAEL M. SCHOLL
Staff Writer
The Cougar Band is traveling from California to perform at Disneyland and the BYU-UCLA game, and planned to leave BYU Wednesday by bus, stop overnight in Las Vegas and continue on to Anaheim, Calif. While in Las Vegas, members plan to practice their half-time show for the game Saturday. Every year Cougar Band takes a major trip, usually in conjunction with an away football game. "Last year we set our sights on UCLA, since we felt it would be a really good game. It's also a good opportunity to see and hear other bands and to learn from them," said David Blackington, band director.

He also said playing in the Rose Bowl, where the football game will be played, will make it much more exciting for the band.

A major trip to an away game is the principal recruiting thrust used to gain band members, according to Blackington. They also try to pick a good time of year for the trip, he added.

Because the trips are usually expensive and since the band members work so hard, band leaders try to plan fun activities during the trip. This year's trip includes a performance at Disneyland.

In order to perform at Disneyland, the Cougar Band first had to be accepted into the park's entertainment division through auditioning. The division consists of various types of performing groups, which meet Disneyland's standards of musicianship and style.

Cougar Band will begin its performance Friday afternoon by marching from one end of Disneyland to the other and back again. Blackington said this type of parade has a "Fied Piper" effect, encouraging park guests to follow the band through the streets. The concert portion of the performance will begin in the town square, where the parade portion ends.

Though the four-day trip will have its share of fun, the band will work hard, too. Blackington said the half-time show for homecoming is a different show than has been performed this year. Cougar Band members will probably receive assignments for the homecoming half-time show on the bus and will begin rehearsing in Las Vegas and Anaheim. He said the band will rehearse for about three hours in each city to begin learning the new show.

Pianist to perform tonight

By MARY ALICE SALMON
Staff Writer

Humpherys began playing the piano when he was five years old. Five years later he debuted at the Idaho Falls Symphony, playing a Mozart concerto.

Humpherys, a BYU graduate and presently a lecturer at BYU, will perform a recital at the Madsen Recital Hall HFAC. The program consists of several of Humpherys's pieces and will begin with the "Sonata in D major, Op. 2" by Beethoven, followed by "F Minor, Op. 49" by Chopin. A brief intermission Humpherys will play by Brahms: "Capriccio in F-sharp major, Op. 76, No. 1," and "Intermezzo in E-flat major, Op. 118, No. 6."

In addition, Humpherys will play Ravel's "Sonata in F-sharp minor, Op. 10, No. 3," and Liszt's "Mephisto Waltz."

The program overall is quite dark, as indicated by all the minor keys," Humpherys said. "However, I wouldn't say it's a melancholy program. It's actually a very romantic one."

According to Humpherys, the Liszt piece is an important one because it is taken from the "Faust Legend," one of the most important literary happenings of the 19th century.

Humpherys stopped playing piano for four years during high school to play tennis. He came to BYU as a math major, and while here, his interest in music was rekindled. He graduated in 1977 with a bachelor's degree in music and went on to the Juillard School in New York, where he received master's in music in 1980.

During the summer of 1980, Humpherys was a lecturer and recitalist at the State University of New York at Potsdam.

He played with the Utah Symphony as a soloist in 1976 and 1978.

Admission is free for the 8 p.m. recital.

Comedian suffers bleeding in eye

NEW YORK (UPI)—Comedian Bob Hope arrived Monday in New York for an eye examination and possible surgery because of a hemorrhage behind his right eye.

Hope, 80, was to be examined by Dr. Robert Ellsworth, the entertainer's regular ophthalmologist, at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, said a hospital spokeswoman.

The entertainer arrived in New York Monday but said he wanted to sleep before seeing Ellsworth, she said. It was not immediately known where Hope was staying.

Hope, speaking to reporters at the Heathrow airport, said he might have to undergo exploratory eye surgery in New York City.

"I have to see a doctor right away because of a hemorrhage behind my right eye," said the entertainer, whose right eye was bloodshot. "Blood vessels have been broken and I can't see too well. I know there is something very wrong."

"Perhaps it is too much excitement and not enough rest," Hope said.

Season ticket option still open for series

Although the 1983-84 Performing Arts Series at BYU is well under way, it's not too late to buy season tickets for remaining performances.

According to Ken Crossley, publicity director for the Music Department, the "select your own series" option is still available, with many high-quality events left on the calendar.

"Because it's a new concept, and they've missed the first offered event, people think they've missed their chance to get season tickets," Crossley said. "But that's not true at all."

According to Crossley, getting season tickets offers the subscriber the opportunity to choose from 20 different performers and tailor-make their own performing arts season. "People don't realize that BYU is considered a major performance center in the West," Crossley said. "The agents who book performers get the east coast lined up, then come to BYU, then go on to the west coast from here."

Among the upcoming events in the Repertory Dance Theater on Oct. 7, they will be coming from Lincoln Center, and will perform the same program here at BYU that they will perform there.

The "select your own series" option offers many benefits, including guaranteed tickets with no standing in line to get them, the best seats available, and a discount.

Between Hinduism, Mormonism

Religious parallel exists

By RUTH K. TERRI
Staff Writer

Remarkable parallels exist between what seem distinctive features of Mormonism, early Christianity and the Hindu religion, said Dr. Th. Rogers, professor of Slavic languages at the University of Utah.

He recently spent four months in India on a personal development leave to study Sanskrit, the classical language of Hinduism and convert to Hinduism, discussed some of these similarities in an illustrated lecture called "Seeing as Through Indian Eyes."

Of all, if there is still an area of the world to be built and repaired for worship in temples, and particularly India," he said.

His own, Indian temples also have sun and moon, and are laid out in symbolic representation of the cosmos, Rogers said.

Each Hindu temple is invariably located on a hill or has a large tank installed next to it to certain ablutions or rites of purification.

Worship, which also involves the propitiating of the brow.

He said the initiatory ordinances of washing and anointing in LDS temples and the fact that on days of each, there is to my knowledge, a fountain or a reflecting pool," Rogers said.

'Brahma' as a concrete person, the Supreme person, not a mere concept.

"Interestingly, the proto-divine force, the great Hindu Brahma is referred to as 'Thou That Art,' strikingly similar to one of the Old Testament titles for Jehovah, 'I Am,' he said.

There is also a Hindu trinity which in terms of its members' respective functions, resembles the Christian godhead, Rogers said.

"Brahma is the supreme Creator, Vishnu, the Preserver of Saviors, two of whose at least eight incarnations are among the Hindus' most beloved and humanly identifiable heroes, the Christ-like Rama and Krishna."

The Hindu 'Shiva,' Rogers said, seems almost disembodied and more a medium than anything else.

"He faintly reminds one in his role of the Holy Spirit who, according to the words of Christ in John, resembles 'the wind' which 'bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound of, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth'."

Rogers said both Hindus and Buddhists aspire, through ascetic self-denial and right living, to acquire a godly nature.

"If, in these religions, one posits a series of successive developmental stages or what we call 'estates' in terms of more than one earthly probation, the principle of eternal progression is nevertheless much the same as in the LDS faith," he said.

Warmth ...

Relaxed, Homey, Safe, all these combined give you the feeling of the MedArt Birthing Center. This center licensed by the State Department of Health is used for uncomplicated deliveries and will provide a more personal enjoyable experience for mother, father and baby. The patients labor, delivery and short stay will be followed by our obstetricians, and the baby by pediatricians. After the short stay post partum observation period, the patients are discharged by the nurse to return to their homes. The feeling of warmth continues when you know that you can be a part of this service for much less than the cost of a hospital stay.

University committees seek students

By KRISTIN M. SMYTH
Staff Writer

The University needs students to serve on committees.

Being on a committee does not require a great deal of time, but it gives the student the opportunity to be "a powerful arm of student government" by working with the administration, said Gary Ogden, ASBYU student chairman in charge of university committees.

"These committees are designed to allow student input on matters which might affect the BYU student body; therefore, the students vote carries the same weight as any other member of the committee," he said.

Carolyn Rasmus, executive assistant to President Jeffrey Holland, is the administrator in charge of the university committees program. She is responsible for coordinating committees involving community members, faculty and students.

"Faculty members are asked to serve on committees where they have a degree of knowledge or expertise," Rasmus said.

Ogden added, "Students with experience in a certain field are preferred for some committees."

The responsibilities of student committee members are to attend committee meetings, be informed on issues pertaining to the committee and be aware of student opinion on the subject, Ogden said.

Students are normally asked to serve for a period of one year, he said.

Air disaster panel topic

The downing of the Korean Airliner 007 will be the topic of a panel discussion Thursday at 1 p.m. in 745 SWKT.

Dean Martin Hickman and Professor Eric A. Jones will be discussing U.S. and Soviet viewpoints.

Hickman, who is dean of the College of Family, Home and Social Sciences, served as a foreign officer with U.S. State Department. He also served as a counselor and economic officer in Hamburg, Germany, and Hong Kong.

Hickman began teaching in the BYU Political Science Department in 1967. In 1970 he was appointed to the position of dean.

Jones is beginning his first year at BYU as a professor of political science. He is from the University of Michigan, where he specialized in Chinese and Soviet relations, and is now doing his dissertation in Soviet politics.

The discussion will be presented by Pi Sigma Alpha and the Political Science Department.

an, his environment scussed at assembly

By KARI BAUER
Staff Writer

ay have entered a new day of more cons environment. E. Philip Pister said at s Forum assembly.

ng on the theme, "Free way to extinction:
rily dominion in the 1980s," Pister, excretary of the Desert Fishes Council and an associate fishery biologist for the California Department of Fish and Game, said man needs to realize his place in the earth and put himself within the natural scheme of things.

"We are not just looking at it, we are right in the middle of it," he said.
Pister said that up until now, man has not done a very good job at protecting parts of his environment.

Man does not have the right to decide what changes should be made in nature, Pister said.
Quoting Hugh Nibley, he said, "If God were to despise all things beneath him, where would that leave us?"

"We are all part of an ecosystem that was formed by a power that we have no comprehension of at all," Pister said.

Pister compared the earth to an aquarium and told a story about his two daughters. Both of them were each given an aquarium with a fish. One kept her aquarium clean and the fish survived. The other did not properly care for her aquarium and the fish died. "We haven't done the best job with our aquarium," he said.

Paraphrasing John F. Kennedy, Pister said, "I think it's time we started asking not what our fellow creatures can do for us, but ask 'what we can do for our fellow creatures?'"

Men tend to judge things according to their apparent material worth to them, he said. Men can build freeways and look at them in awe, but do not realize that small spiders in their webs have been doing the same thing for years.

Men can build and send space shuttles into space, but cannot yet make a caterpillar. "And I hope we never can," Pister said. "We need to have a little humility."

There are two questions that BYU students should ask themselves, Pister said. The first is "We enter to learn what?" The second, "We go forth to serve whom?"

ONE OF THE OLDEST WAYS TO BECOME AN ARMY OFFICER IS STILL ONE OF THE BEST.

know today as Army ROTC.
felt our country needed more "citizen soldiers" he established the first private school for military instruction.
didn't take long for his idea to spread.
the turn of the century, 105 colleges universities across the country were offering military instruction on their campuses.
day, with Army ROTC available at over 400 colleges and universities, the program is stronger than ever.

And last year alone, over 70,000 students participated.

Some were interested in the leadership and management training. Others enrolled on full-tuition scholarships. And the financial assistance — up to $1,000 a year during the last two years of ROTC — attracted still others.

But all of them had one thing in common:
the desire to begin their future as Army officers.
Why don't you do the same? You'll graduate to a position of real responsibility.
Exercise leadership and management skills.
Build a secure future for yourself. And enjoy the travel, adventure and prestige of being a second lieutenant in today's Army.

Army ROTC is

Dispatcher job 'never dull'

By SHANNON HALL
Staff Writer

"Dispatch, I have a 10-33, do you read me?" Immediately, Jan Jacks begins pushing buttons, notifying highway troopers that another trooper needs help. Jacks works as a dispatcher for the Utah Highway Patrol, and her days are anything but dull, she said. Jacks said there was one day when there were 13 accidents. Another day, a car crossing railroad tracks was hit by a train. Within 30 seconds of the train accident, two officers were killed.

Fatalities are not a common occurrence, but Jacks said it is one of the biggest worries associated with her job. "You have no idea when one of the troopers will get blown away," she added, "I've told them not to—I can't afford the flowers."

Jacks is also in charge of 10 radio channels and 10 telephone lines, which she said inevitably "all light up at the wrong time." The radio and telephone lines keep her busy, but Jacks' first responsibility is to the troopers on the road since "dispatch is their only link to help and assistance." Jacks said there is never a dull moment on the highway patrol radio. It is not uncommon to have a car chase, as there was several weeks ago. A trooper pursued a car going 95 mph. Jacks said she was responsible for alerting various troopers and putting them on the path of the speeding car.

"The car was going 105 mph by the time the trooper pulled them over—and it was a 14-year-old driving," she said.

Jacks also answers many of the public's calls. Although most of them are legitimate, she said occasionally she hears an unusual question such as, "Does Farmington have electricity?"

Originally from West Virginia, Jacks received one month of training to prepare her for her present job with the Utah Highway Patrol.

"In Utah, the training is different. There is a specific amount of training required per year and you are sent to school for it," she said. "They have very good training in Utah."

As far as Jacks is concerned, there are no real disadvantages concerning her job. "There are many rewards. The rewards come after you have sent a trooper to help someone who is having a heart attack or who has a baby that has stopped breathing. Occasionally, the people call back and thank you for helping. Those are the real rewards," she said.

Porter visits foreign conference

By SUSAN HARRIS
Staff Writer

A BYU faculty member attended the World Congress of International Education in West Germany this summer as one of five representatives from the United States.

Dr. Blaine R. Porter, a faculty member for 29 years, attended the 11th conference sponsored by the Comparative Education Society in Europe.

"It was good to see people from various cultures and countries working cooperatively together," Porter said. Porter delivered a speech and presented a research paper at the conference to the 400 delegates who attended from all over the world.

About 50 speeches were given on different topics pertaining to the conference theme, which dealt with multi-culturalism and multi-cultural education, he said.

Porter's speech was entitled "Families and Schools: Co-Stewards for Multi-Cultural Education."

Porter talked on the theme of how children learn certain things at home and other things at school. Sometimes it is hard for teachers to teach different cultures in the same classroom, he said.

"Each of these will be more successful if they support each other. It is important that teachers realize values certain ethnic groups have for certain things."

If the teacher could contact the home of the students and be aware of the ethnic and cultural situations present in the classroom, the students could have an "interesting, valuable, rich learning experience," Porter said.

"The goal is to help all children to be better prepared to live in a multi-cultural society," Porter said. "It's the responsibility of everyone to work together to achieve this goal."

Porter said if the teachers can show the children how interesting different cultures are, the children would have an increased understanding of other people and they would grow up with the same understanding.

"It was an exciting and rewarding experience to mingle with scholars from around the world who were genuinely and sincerely seeking meaningful solutions to common or serious problems," Porter said.

The conference was in the Marienberg Fortress near the University of Wurzburg, one of the four oldest universities in Germany.

Bike thefts on the rise

By ERIC ZEBLEY
Senior Reporter

Last year $18,000 worth of bicycles were stolen from BYU campus. Ninety-eight percent of the stolen bikes were left unlocked.

Not only are bicycle thefts on the rise but more bicycles and mopeds are being impounded this year, said Traffic Sgt. Dan Evans.

"So far in September, we are impounding four to five bicycles a day. We don't want to do that," he said.

Evans said students are locking their bikes where they should be: in front of doors, next to trees and utility poles, or next to the ramp railings the handicapped use.

"We're pleading with students to park bikes in racks. If a bike is not found in a rack, the result is a $5 fine," he said.

About 200 new high-security bike racks have been installed in lots near the Smith Fieldhouse and the BYU Bookstore, Sgt. Arnold Lemmon said.

"It's the finest bicycle rack made, but students aren't using them."

Many students think their bike has been stolen when in reality it has only been impounded at the Traffic Office, said Rulon Stacey, a traffic field assistant.

If unregistered bikes are left at the Traffic Office for more than 90 days they are auctioned off to the public.

City crews assist police

Program cuts Orem crime

By SHANNON HALL
Staff Writer

Orem City's Police Division has found the cliché "many hands make less work" to be true, regarding the "Employee Awareness" program.

For the last year, Orem City's public works crews have been a part of the police force assisting in watching for neighborhood crime.

According to Captain Jay Barker of the Orem Police Division, sanitation workers and maintenance crews are instructed to keep their eyes open for unusual things as they make their rounds. Some things they watch for would be a car that does not "fit" in a neighborhood, a missing child that has been reported over the city radio frequency or anything that appears to be out of the ordinary.

Program effective

Barker said that in the last six to eight months, two or three missing children were found as a result of this program. One child was found in a canal by a street department employee.

Although there are many missing children reported a week, Barker said, "We treat all missing children as if it were a kidnapping. Most of them are not; the children are just playing with a friend and haven't been drilled enough to come straight home."

As soon as a missing child is reported, all public workers are notified over one of five city radio frequencies. According to Orem City Fire Division Chief Karl Schemensky, "It is standard policy that all divisions of the Public Safety Department and public workers assist in lost child calls."

Stewart Taylor, administrative assistant for the Streets Division, said members of the police division came to employee meetings and explained the "Employee Awareness" program. The police division personnel gave a one to two hour presentation on what to look for.

Taylor said the public workers don't mind the program and seem to enjoy helping the community as well as the police force. "The successes of this program are something you can't really measure with a yardstick. You don't know what the benefits will be, but they won't be negative. In the least, the program provides an awareness."

Two sections

Orem City Fire Marshal Larry Ballard said the program is actually divided into two sections. The first involves the public workers receive training from the Police Division and are actually looking for neighborhood crimes.

Since Orem City has a consolidated Public Safety Department, one-fourth of the Fire Division is cross-trained to assist in police work, said Ballard, adding that great help in finding lost children.

Barker believes the program is effective and worthwhile. "It cost us one red cent, and if any successes come from it a year, my mind it is 100 percent effective."
